“ RIP Grandma 💔 Thank you for spending endless hours scratching my back, arms and legs until I fall asleep on your lap (my favorite thing). For sitting at your kitchen table making crafts with me when i'd come stay over. For making Grandpa sleep in the guest bed in the “purple room” so I could sleep in bed with you. For reading every Little Golden Book to me over and over - one of our favorites was Wizard of Oz. For making delicious stew and letting me eat all the snacks in the house. For teaching me to do laundry. For swearing at Grandpa when we me and him would go get the car and pull up to the door of the outlet store like we were picking up you and mom, then drove away laughing when you tried to open the door 🤪. I know you hated it, but it was so funny. Thank you for telling me I made your day when I would call you, it would in turn make mine to hear that. Lastly, for all the memories and years of being the best Grandma ever to me. Especially for keeping the little things I made for you years ago, hanging in your house even after I made it to adulthood, it warmed my heart. Love you always. ❤️
