“ My heart goes out to Rosemary's family. What a blessing she was to everyone who knew her. It is times like these, when things just don't make any sense that I try really hard to remember that the true blessing of the people in your life are that they are in your life at all. That you got to know them, to spend time with them, to love them, to laugh with them. Time is guaranteed to no one, and you never know how much time you will have with any person, young or old. So what I will try to take from the blessing that was Rosemary, is to live life as she did. To do because I can. To go because it's there and should be experienced. To attend, to get to know, to take part in, to have a smile on your face because her smile lifted everyone that saw it (just look at that picture of her and you'll know what I mean), and lastly, to treasure my dad and my husband and my family and friends even more than I do, and to spend as much of that elusive gift of time with them as possible, because that's what it's all about. I can't think of a better way to honor Rosemary's memory.

“ I used to play cards many years ago when our children were little and we needed a night out. She knew my husband Jack and our best man John Nuebert. After so many years we met again at line dancing. She was a real sweetheart. We had fun reminiscing. I will miss her company. You have all suffered the loss of a really lovely lady.
